Guy Mahmarian has been involved in the music industry for over 15 years. He started his career in 1992 as an artist manager and after that Guy owned and operated a record label, signing artists from around the country and taking them onto the national music scene. Musicians typically do a good job writing songs, creating music and crafting a stage show, but when it comes to marketing and promotion they need some help. The information in this CD series will benefit the novice as well as the seasoned artist in getting to the next level.
